HOCHTIEF subsidiaries win contracts in the USA and Australia worth EUR 125 million

Marines quarters at Camp Pendleton, California - Freeway interchange and bridges west of Melbourne

Via subsidiaries in the USA and Australia, HOCHTIEF won new contracts worth a combined total of EUR 125 million. US subsidiary Turner as member of a joint venture will provide design build services for Bachelor Enlisted Quarters (BEQ) at Camp Pendleton, California, for the United States Marine Corps for approximately EUR 74 million (USD 109 million). Turner's share amounts to EUR 48 million (USD 71 million). John Holland, a company of HOCHTIEF subsidiary Leighton, only recently secured a contract for a freeway section. In an alliance, the company will construct the EUR 119 million (AUD 200 million) Western Freeway west of Melbourne. John Holland's share is more than EUR 77 million (AUD 130 million).

The new US Marine residences will house more than 1,500 marines and be completed by August 2011. The project is a follow-up contract: Only in August did Turner take on a similar project at Camp Pendleton for almost EUR 70 million (USD 104 million). The section of the Western Freeway on which John Holland will work from 2010 will link the towns of Melton and Bacchus Marsh. To this end, the alliance will build, among others, a new interchange and bridges. The project is scheduled for completion in early 2012.
